

MEAL SUPPORT

STRATEGIES TO SUPPORT
THOSE RECOVERING FROM AN EATING DISORDER

SARAH-LOUISE MCKENZIE

Copyright © 2013 by Sarah-Louise McKenzie

All rights reserved

Printed in Australia by BBC Digital

---

BBCdigital ▶ Making work flow.

BBC Digital Sunshine Coast
115-117 Aerodrome Rd (Cnr Maud St) Maroochydore
P-07 54434000 F-07 54436811 Web: www.bbcdigital.com.au

First Edition

For ordering duplicate copies or information about permission to reproduce selections from this booklet, email sarah@recoveryresources.com.au

Cover Design by Manysparrows Art - Eleasah Ridley

Interior Illustrations by Sarah-Louise McKenzie and Manysparrows Art -
Eleasah Ridley

Foreword by Alison Lee

Project Supported by Isis – the Eating Issues Centre, Inc.

McKenzie, Sarah-Louise.

Meal support: strategies to support those recovering from an eating disorder

CONTENTS

Foreword.....	iii
Preface.....	v
Acknowledgements.....	vi
Introduction .....	1
Disclaimer .....	1
Working with Adolescents .....	1
Introductory Considerations.....	2
Understanding Change .....	2
What is Meal Support?.....	4
Assessing Readiness.....	5
Those with an Eating Issue .....	5
The Support Person .....	6
What Does NOT Help.....	7
Communication.....	8
What Not to Say .....	8
Examples of What to Say or Do .....	11
Goals for Meal Support .....	12
A Word on Food .....	12
RAVES .....	13
Areas of Support.....	15
Safe and Challenge Foods .....	16
Establishing Mealtime Guidelines .....	17
Before the Meal – Planning and Preparation.....	18
Environment .....	18
Structure .....	18
Meal Preparation .....	19
Serving .....	19
During the Meal .....	20
Distraction .....	20
Coaching and Reassurance .....	21
Useful Phrases .....	21
Addressing Disordered Eating Behaviours .....	22

CONTENTS CONT.

Questions to Ponder .....	23
After the Meal – Post Meal Support.....	24
What to Expect – Physical Symptoms .....	24
What to Expect – Psychological Effects .....	24
Distraction .....	25
Coping Strategies.....	25
Coping Strategies for Dealing with Intrusive and Distressing Thoughts .....	26
Coping Strategies for Dealing with Intrusive and Distressing Images .....	27
Coping Strategies for Dealing with Unpleasant Feelings .....	28
Specific Challenges.....	29
RAVES .....	29
Eating in Public .....	29
Relapse Concerns .....	30
Warning Signs .....	30
Triggers .....	31
Action Plan .....	31
Other Things I’d Like You to Know or Do to Support Me .....	33
Self-Care for Support People.....	34
Words from Various Support People.....	35
From a Father .....	35
From Another Father .....	35
From a Mother .....	36
From Another Mother .....	38
From a Partner .....	39
From a Sibling .....	39
From a Friend .....	40
Concluding Thoughts .....	42
Additional Notes .....	43
Eating Disorder Services .....	44

FOREWORD

If you are reading this booklet, it is likely that you or someone you care about has been affected by eating issues and you are seeking guidance in assisting them, or yourself, to restore healthy eating behaviours.

If you have been struggling with eating issues, you may be ambivalent about RECOVERY or have realized that you cannot do it on your own, which is partly why Sarah created this booklet...because RECOVERY is possible.... but only with plenty of support. Paradoxically accepting support is one of the greatest challenges one faces in overcoming eating issues and yet it can also be one of the most rewarding. As you come to find freedom in the process of letting go of the old behaviours and reaching out to another, you will find hope.

Whether you are the support person or the person contemplating recovery, this booklet contains a wealth of wisdom, practical tools, and guidelines that can aid you in preparing for and taking steps to restore normal eating habits. Like anything worth doing, re-establishing natural eating functions takes practice, patience and commitment and there are bound to be times you will feel like quitting. Along with practice, supporting yourself or someone on this path requires a particular type of attitude or approach...one that is both strong and flexible, loving and firm, and above all, one that is compassionate and willing to keep going...especially when the going gets tough!

Sarah is someone who knows only too well the despair and hopelessness that can accompany the journey of RECOVERY and has learned the value of having a supportive team and cultivating a compassionate attitude towards herself. Sarah and her support team have rigorously applied these attitudes in the journey of developing the material for this booklet and are excited to see it come to fruition.

I would like to thank Sarah for inviting me to write this forward and congratulate her in having the courage to turn her frustration and desperation into a vision of a resource that could give others hope and in making that vision into a reality. I am confident this will not be the last we hear from Sarah as she continues to explore her creativity and inspire others on the path of RECOVERY.

I trust that you will discover through reading this booklet, the extraordinary gift that can come from supporting another to do what they cannot yet do for themselves, and the freedom and joy that awaits us when we take the risk to step beyond our comfort, breathe into our fear and receive support from another.

May you discover the possibility of RECOVERY within the power of connection.

Alison Lee

Alison Lee is a Counsellor, Gestalt Therapist, Artist and Activist

Founder of Heartwork & Creator of the Isis Mentor Program (2013)

PREFACE

I have spent considerable time receiving inpatient treatment for Anorexia Nervosa and EDNOS (Eating Disorder Not Otherwise Specified). The transition from the intensive supervision and support of hospital, to the comparatively minimal support in the community, is extremely challenging and frequently resulted in being readmitted within a few weeks. As an outpatient, I needed daily meal support to strengthen recovery and reduce the risk of relapse, but such a program was inaccessible. My family, partner, friends, and treating team were willing to assist in any way they could, but the only meal support guidelines that existed were rigid inpatient ones and the Maudsley Approach, which is designed for adolescents. Both of these were inappropriate for adults desiring support in the community and in their own homes. Time and again, I was told that what I needed and the resources that would be so beneficial, just didn't exist.

I then began instituting my own meal support program, organising to eat at least one meal a day with a support person (my therapist, case manager/psychologist, mentor, partner, parents, friends, or at group therapy). It was challenging and required navigating new waters, but in collaboration, we began to increase my regularity and adequacy of nutrition and take steps towards recovery. Through trial and error, we discovered what did and didn't work, and I became more skilled in identifying and communicating to my support people what I needed.

Amanda Deardon (coordinator of Isis – the Eating Issues Centre Inc) approached me with 'Hall, D, Leichner, P, Calderon, R & Caufield, S 2004, An introduction to effective meal support: a guide for family and friends, Children's & Women's Health Centre of British Columbia, Vancouver, Canada', and asked if I'd be interested in adapting the booklet, which had been designed for working with children and adolescents, to reflect the dynamics of working with adults. Initially, I designed a single page flyer with basic principles that I discovered had worked for me. As I sought feedback from others, the project grew into a booklet of its own. I sought to create something that reflected the support needs across the continuum of eating disorders and captured those things which my support people wish they had known from the onset of my eating disorder.

What you hold in your hands today is a result of the feedback, input, and collaboration of individuals recovering from eating disorders, the people who support them, clinical professionals, and eating disorder therapists.